Visit Our Monument to the Puerto Rican Flag

Location: One flag at Western and Division and one flag at California and Division

Inaugurated in 1995, the steel flags are welded together to honor the first waves of Puerto Ricans who established themselves in Chicago and the Midwest in the mid 1940s to work for the steel industry. Each flag weighs 45 tons, measures 56' high, and forms a 59' arch from one side of the street to the other. The flags have won numerous awards including the prestigious "Building of the Year Award" by the American Institute of Architecture.

BIENVENIDOS / WELCOME to Paseo Boricua

Once you pass under the enormous red and blue monuments to the Puerto Rican flag that arch over the street, you will encounter colorful murals, colonial inspired buildings and hardy Caribbean restaurants that emanate with the music and life of Puerto Rico. That's when you know that you have entered a hidden treasure in Humboldt Park.

Paseo Boricua is the only Puerto Rican themed avenue in the United States, with two award winning monuments to the Puerto Rican flag, ten Puerto Rican owned restaurants, five signature street festivals, numerous murals that date back from 1980 to 2010 and the only Puerto Rican Museum in the United States (Institute for Puerto Rican Arts & Culture-IPRAC).
